User evaluation of AEC study program alums is generally in the good category for attitude, motivation, problem analysis, application of information technology, openness to suggestions, adaptation to new things, and motivation at work. While the initiative aspect for expressing opinions is in the very good category, this shows very good communication skills and conveying ideas. In the aspect of applying knowledge at work and adaptability is also good, only in foreign language skills that still need to be improved. Users consider AEC study program alums to have contributed to good job proposals, used information technology, and had high enthusiasm at work. Although in terms of mobility, travel abroad is still very rare because job demands have yet to lead to overseas mobility. AEC study program alums often participate in the training activities shown in the diagram above. AEC study program alums are also actively involved as presenters, including frequent presenters. However, in the use of foreign languages, AEC study program alums rarely use them at work.
